a LessMore

*"public is the power of in excess of one who blurs the order of police."
"A man is infinitely more than a man"*

Me, always a less more; me always a little more than me; me, always one less, always one more... In fact I'm only more, only into more. There finally, I am no more me, infinitely more than me.

Me, always a less more an actor; me, a hospitable person as if there is no one at home. I am quite empty. There are hundreds of faces beneath this mask. One would be offended if I choose the other. My looks are me. Men, animals and the nature, each one is my external organs.

Me, always a less more speedy, so speedy that passers by think I'm just standing on the side of the road. Me, always a less more speedy so speedy that my every leap stops the roads, stops the clocks.

Me, always too beautiful and too ugly. Me, resemble nothing. My shapeless body; branched, droopy, fluid, riddled, blurred, dirty, callous... only to please ladies and gentlemen I can't wear a uniform. My power is ingenuity of my measureless grace.

Me, both too good and too bad, though not yet banished from heaven. Before the first sin and right after the last judgment... I'm illegal, unlawful, invalid but never a criminal.

It's all a rant. But me, always a little talkative. I talk too much, way too much, in spite of the authority of the shut mouth. I talk so much my voice won't fit into any language. People leave their work when they hear my voice, go on vacation, get naked, run into the streets; anyone hearing my voice says "It's just like mine!". For I'm as mute as nature is.

Me, always a little alone. Could we get so crowded if I weren't alone? We would be one if I weren't by myself. Now we're millions. I'm always many, always crowded. This is why I'm more than me. When my hand touches, my tongue twists, my mind slides, my eye sees, when I fall in love, when I rebel, when I leave... I become infinitely more. I'm timeless, I have an end and I'm endless. I can't be counted, I'm useless, worthless, can't be evaluated. For this I can't be bought or sold, I haven't been in circulation for long. I'm the arithmetic of the uncountables, share of the shareless, sole condition to the equality and freedom of the talking creatures. Once said one: "Public is always more than itself and less than itself."

Arzu Arbak was born in Istanbul. She completed her undergraduate studies at Istanbul University and obtained her Master of Business Administration from Yeditepe University. For many years, she worked in IT departments as an analyst, programmer and IT manager for Saudi American Bank and ING Bank.
